

In an ideal world, fraudulent insurance claims—those that are not due to an actual event—simply wouldn't happen.

We're confident our clients have integrity, and aren't likely to stoop to such measures. However, like society in general, the insurance business has its own dark element: those who are less than honest.

This is not petty theft. According to The Canadian Coalition Against Insurance Fraud, of all claims made annually in Canada, $1.3 billion worth are fraudulent. This hits close to home when you realize that these false claims increase premiums by 10 to 15 percent; that's money out of your pocket.

We're doing everything possible to deal with the situation. Aside from keeping our clients and the public informed, we continually implement and employ the latest anti-fraud tools and practices, and support industry-wide initiatives addressing the problem. And we don't back down. We have and will continue to charge and prosecute the accused.

If you are aware of anyone who has submitted a fraudulent claim, or intends to, please give us a call. You can also contact Crime Stoppers—anonymously if you wish—at 1-800-222-TIPS.

After all, it's only fair.
